Accepting the new responsibility, ACMA President, Deepak Jain, said, "It is a matter of privilege to be appointed as the President of ACMA, the apex body of the Indian Auto Component Industry."

The announcement was made at the 59th Annual Session of ACMA.

Announcing the new leadership, ACMA Director General, Vinnie Mehta, said, "We are delighted to announce the appointment of Deepak Jain, as ACMA President. An industry veteran and a leading manufacturer of auto components & systems, Deepak has an in-depth understanding of industry dynamics. We look forward to his leadership in taking the industry's agenda forward in these challenging times."

Accepting the new responsibility, ACMA President, Deepak Jain, said, "It is a matter of privilege to be appointed as the President of ACMA, the apex body of the Indian Auto Component Industry. The industry is going through one of the most difficult times ever. Notwithstanding the regulations-led-technological changes and business cyclicity, the industry needs to prepare itself for the future."

He further added, "We have created a new pillar at ACMA to focus exclusively on EVs & Future Mobility. It is an imperative for ACMA to drive change through the entire auto component manufacturing chain and help its members stay relevant to their customers. I am confident that we will well scale the challenges confronting us with the support of the government and all our stake holders."
